Report of the Program

The International Webinar on “COVID-19 & Lockdown: A Challenge to Corona Fighters & Corona Survivors from Social Standpoint” was held on July 20-21, 2020, organized by the Departments of Philosophy, Psychology, Women's Studies, the Psychological Counselling Cell, and the IQAC at Basanti Devi College. The event was attended by 100 participants, including students, academics, and professionals from diverse backgrounds.

The webinar featured two distinguished resource persons. Dr. Sancheeta Ghosh, a Social Scientist from APWLD, Thailand, began the sessions by exploring the social impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic and lockdown. Her presentation focused on the challenges faced by frontline workers and survivors, highlighting the pandemic's effects on mental health, social inequalities, and the role of community solidarity in overcoming these issues.

Following Dr. Ghosh, Dr. Ranjan Ghosh, MBBS, MD(USA) and Founder of GOOD KARMA, provided insights into the medical and social dimensions of the pandemic. Dr. Ghosh discussed the experiences of healthcare professionals during the crisis and shared strategies for supporting both the medical community and survivors, emphasizing the importance of empathy, resilience, and effective healthcare practices.

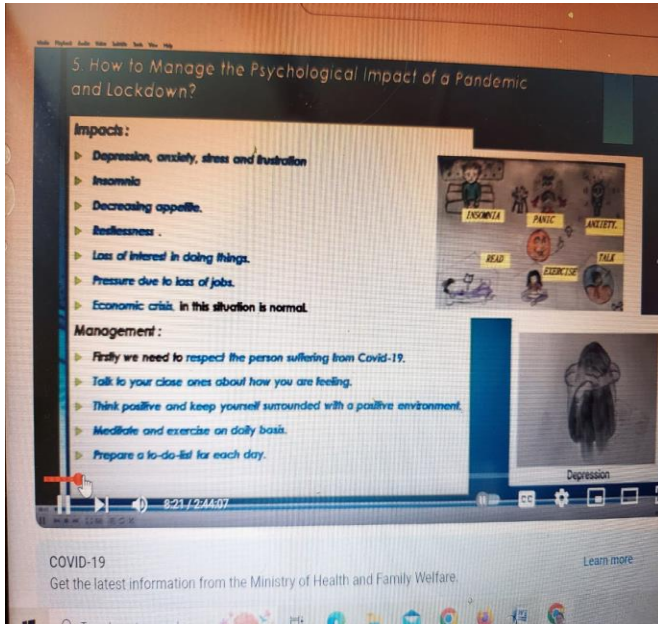

The two-day webinar provided a comprehensive overview of the COVID-19 pandemic from a social perspective and facilitated a rich exchange of ideas. Participants appreciated the expert analyses and the opportunity to engage in meaningful discussions about coping with the challenges posed by the pandemic.
